

Genetics Society of AustralAsia Smith-White Travel Award 2021 Awards Application Cover Sheet

The Spencer Smith-White Travel Prize is granted annually to assist PhD students who are members of GSA to attend the annual conference. Spencer 'Spinny' Smith-White was a founding member of the Genetics Society of AustralAsia. Spinny was a Professor of Genetics at School of Biological Sciences at Sydney University. His work was in the field of cytogenetics. Spinny was a strong supporter of the Society and student participation in it. The rules of the award are as follows:

1. The Prize is awarded annually
2. The GSA Committee will serve as the adjudication panel that awards the prize
3. The applicant must be a current financial member of GSA when the application is lodged
4. The applicant must be a currently enrolled PhD candidate at the time of the 2021 GSA conference
5. Applicants must present their work at the 2021 GSA conference. Both oral and poster presentations are acceptable. The presentation must substantially consist of the student's own work and the contribution of others must be clearly acknowledged.

The award consists of:

- a certificate
- the opportunity to present a talk or poster at the conference
- registration fees to attend the conference, including a dinner ticket (when the conference is not online-only)
